

Once upon a Pole

There are many reasons fliers get posted in public, from garage sales to lost pets.

For maximum exposure, a common place to display these notices is at road intersections on the stop light poles. After years of adding and removing posters, the remaining light pole surface takes on a historic collage of old tape, glue, and flaked paint. One can only imagine what messages were posted, but sometimes there are small clues left behind.

