

Free Range Furniture

Free range furniture can be found almost anywhere, from busy urban centers to remote wilds like Europe's largest desert in Iceland. It can be solitary or congregating in groups, hidden from view or conspicuously positioned. It comes in all shapes, sizes, and colors; sometimes blending in with it's environment but more often standing out. How and why the furniture ends up in these places can be a mystery. It has a history and story that will never be known. Unfortunately, like stray or abandoned pets, this free range furniture is often found in unsuitable locations. It must be rounded up and transported to a place where it can be properly managed.

